

MGMT215 : Global Healthcare Delivery and Financing

In this course, students will explore methods of healthcare delivery and healthcare financing models within developed and developing countries. Students will examine how social, cultural, economic, and political factors have contributed to various organizational and financial models of healthcare. In addition, students will analyze how the structure and resource allocation of a healthcare system impacts the health of a given population. Students will gain insight into the U.S. system as they study alternative models.

Credits 3