

Distance Education

Bryan College of Health Sciences offers the option of taking courses in a more flexible environment in a distance format. Distance Education is incorporated into most programs in the College. The Director of Digital Education and Instructional Design works with faculty and administration to provide quality courses and services for all students in the program regardless of location. Refer to the course registration guide for courses offered in distance format. For more detail and answers to your questions, please contact the Director of Digital Education and Instructional Design by phone (402-481-0121) or by email at krista.croghan@bryanhealth.org.
